

COBCCC Website Terms of Use Policy, January 2021

Terms of Use

Any information contained on the COBCCC's website is for information purposes only. While the COBCCC endeavours to keep this information up to date and correct, it makes no warranties as to its accuracy or correctness. Any reliance you place on such information is at your own risk. The COBCCC is not liable to you for any loss, damage, claims, liabilities, expenses (including without limitation legal costs and settlement costs) whatsoever arising out of, or attributable to, any content or material on this website whether in contract, tort (including negligence), statute or otherwise.

Copyright

Any person is authorised to view, copy and print the contents of each web page for personal information purposes only. Any other use, reproduction or exploitation of the content on each web page is strictly prohibited. In particular, you must not on-sell, replicate, reproduce or redistribute any such information without prior approval.

Links to other websites

The COBCCC provides links to various Internet sites operated by third parties. These linked Internet sites are not under the control of the COBCCC and it is not responsible for the contents of any linked Internet site or any hyperlink contained in a linked site. Links are provided for your convenience only, and the inclusion of any link does not imply any endorsement of the linked website by the COBCCC. The COBCCC accepts no liability for any loss incurred by you directly or indirectly as a result of you following any links or due to your reliance on information provided by such sites.

Linking to our website

You may insert a link to the COBCCC home page and/or specific pages or publications found on the COBCCC website on the condition that:

- Links must be presented in a way which fairly represents the COBCCC's role and site.
- The context in which you insert the link must not give your visitors the impression that your site, or your company, is sponsored or endorsed by the COBCCC.
- The context of the link must not suggest that the COBCCC have created any of your content
- Links must open in a new window, and not in the navigation of your website.

Website accessibility

If you have trouble accessing any of the information on our website, please refer to the guidance below. You are also welcome to contact us with your request, so we can provide the information you need in an alternative format.

The World Wide Web Consortium (W3C) publishes a set of guidelines called Web Content Accessibility Guidelines (WCAG). These guidelines presently set the international standard for web accessibility. There are three levels of conformance (A, AA and AAA).

As part of our commitment to accessibility, we currently aim to meet WCAG 2.0 conformance level AA for all content published on our website.

Document formats

Most documents we provide on this website are Portable Document format (PDF).

Adobe Reader software is required to view PDFs. It is available as a free download from Adobe's website. Adobe also provides a guide to help people use Adobe Reader accessibility tools and settings (including in conjunction with screen readers) to enhance their experience with PDF documents.

Please see the Adobe Accessibility page for this and other resources.

Screen readers

There are a number of screen readers software applications available that convert on-screen text to speech. This includes applications freely available online, such as NVDA (NonVisual Desktop Access) for Microsoft Windows.

Web browser compatibility

For the best experience with this website, we recommend upgrading your browser to the latest version. Parts of this website, particularly forms, may not work with older browsers. If you experience browser compatibility issues, please upgrade.
